Knowledge, Skills, Abilities and Competencies Measured

Navigation: This measures a candidate's interactions within a realistic contact center environment by providing a workspace that simulates multiple customer service-based applications running on a Windows desktop simultaneously.

Service Orientation: This measures a candidate's tendency to focus on meeting customers' needs in a simulated telephone call context. This includes the tone and language used to respond to customers' questions, apologizing when appropriate, and providing solutions that directly relate to customers' requests.

Tactful Problem Solving: This measures a candidate's tendencies to engage in problem solving with customers in the context of simulated telephone calls. This includes acquiring necessary information from both customers and systems to understand the nature of the problem, working through ambiguity to determine the correct answer, and tactfully explaining the resolution of the situation to customers.

Data Entry Speed: This measures a candidate's ability to listen to and record information received from customers quickly.

Data Entry Accuracy: This measures a candidate's ability to listen to and record information received from customers accurately.

Achievement Orientation: This measures the potential for success in entry-level jobs. This scale measures self-esteem and developmental indicators of success in entry-level customer service jobs through questions regarding developmental influences, self-esteem, work history, and work-related values and attitudes.

Contact Center Retention: This measures a candidate's background, experiences, attitudes, judgments, and opinions that are associated with increased job tenure in entry-level contact center positions. This is reported as a separate score on the score report and is not included in the Overall Score.

Score Interpretation

Navigation

This measures a candidate's interactions within a realistic contact center environment by providing a workspace that simulates multiple customer service-based applications running on a Windows desktop simultaneously.

The candidate tends to excel in navigating between multiple computer screens to find information. He/she is able to determine which application contains the information needed to solve the customer's problem. Based on this information, the candidate is more likely than others to perform well on the job when navigating through multiple screens.

Service Orientation

This measures a candidate's tendency to focus on meeting customers' needs in a simulated telephone call context. This includes the tone and language used to respond to customers' questions, apologizing when appropriate, and providing solutions that directly relate to customers' requests.

The candidate tends to lack enthusiasm when working with customers. He/she makes assumptions and does not offer customers alternative options. The candidate is inclined to be impatient and less courteous than
